Committed to Conservation

In 1962, Mary Moody Northen, the daughter of financial tycoon William Lewis Moody Jr. and chairman of The Moody Foundation, donated a new scout headquarters in Galveston. This was to honor her late husband, Edwin C. Northen, who was a longtime Scouter until his death in 1954. The Moody Foundation would later go on to establish a public non-profit educational destination utilizing nature in the advancement of rehabilitation, conservation, recreation and research known as Moody Gardens. The legacy of supporting scouts continues with a connection of conservation and environmental education. Youth from the Boy Scouts of America and Girl Scouts of the USA experience hands-on learning from experts in the field as they achieve more than just a badge. We hope that you will join us on your scout journey as you develop the skills and knowledge needed to pursue a conservation award and make a positive impact in your community and for the environment.
